

AALS COMMITTEE ON CURRICULUM

SURVEY OF INNOVATIONS IN LAW SCHOOL CURRICULA

The AALS has decided to focus on the issue of curriculum reform in American Law Schools, and would like to set up a process that enables law schools to share information about what is being done, help each other develop new initiatives, and generally catalyze the effort to bring law teaching into the 21st century. The first step in this process is a survey of current curriculum reform efforts. We understand that surveys come thick and fast these days, but we promise that this is not an effort to collect information that will then sit on someone's shelf, or in someone's hard drive. First, you'll receive information in return, information about new ideas and implementation strategies that other law schools have developed. Second, we'll use the results of the survey to design various settings where law school faculty and administrators can come together to share ideas and develop plans about reforming the law school curriculum.

The following questions are designed to be answered by brief statements, sometimes one or two words, sometimes one or two sentences. We would be delighted if you want to attach a longer description of any program or plan that you regard as particularly worth sharing. In addition, feel free to attach documents you've already prepared for other purposes.

I. First Year

1. Do you have an elective in the first year? No

If so, what does it consist of?

A limited number of courses specially designed for the first year

A limited number of upper division courses

Any upper division course the student chooses to take

Something else (please describe)

2. Do you offer or require any skills courses or training in the first year other than legal writing and/or Legal Research? If so, please describe.

If you offer or require legal writing, is it something other than a separate class taught by specially-hired, non-tenure track instructors? If so, please describe.

3. Aside from the electives and skills courses described above, do you require any course other than Torts, Contracts, Civil Procedure, Criminal Law, Property and Constitutional Law?

yes

If so, what is it?

Legal Methods
Regulatory Law
International Law
Evidence
Criminal Procedure
Theories of Law
Other, please describe

Litigation

4. Do you offer a separate curriculum in the first year that students can choose, or to which they are assigned? If so, please describe.

5. Have you made significant changes or innovations in your first year curriculum recently other than those described in response to the foregoing questions? If so please describe.

II. Second and Third Years

1. Do you offer a specialized track or concentration program in any of the following areas?

Business Law
Public Law
International Law
Transnational Law
Social Justice
Criminal Law and Procedure
Other, please describe

Requires courses that other students can take as well (please specify)
Offers special courses (please describe)
Requires special courses (please describe)
Provides placements, internships or clinical program (please describe)

Grants a certificate (please tell us for what)
Other features (please describe)

2. Apart from the standard live client clinics, and the clinical programs described in your answer to the previous question, do you offer any other kinds of clinical programs? If so, please describe.

Criminal Justice Fieldwork and Law Reform: This course was taught at GSU for the first time in the Fall 2005 semester. In this course students learned about the criminal justice system as it actually operates in metropolitan Atlanta and developed a law reform proposal about a specific aspect of that system. The course used a wide variety of teaching methods including assigned readings drawn from both legal scholarship and social science research, classroom lectures and discussions, and group fieldwork at locations such as police stations, jails and courthouses. Each student selected some aspect of the criminal justice system for independent research out of which will develop a written project proposing improvement or reform. The project must demonstrate mastery of applicable substantive criminal law and procedure and application of that knowledge to data gathered through the student's own fieldwork. Examples of fieldwork would be carefully documented court-watching, analysis of data collected from public records, and interviews of relevant participants in the criminal justice system. One student in this course drew front page coverage of her work which challenged the practice of excluding the public from Municipal court hearings on weekends. More detail is available on Professor Clark Cunningham's webpage.

3. What joint degree or accelerated degree programs do you offer?

JD/MBA JD/MPA JD/MA in Law and Philosophy JD/MCRP in Law and Urban Planning [with Ga. Tech] JD/MSHA JD/MBA/MHA

4. Other than the programs described above, do you have any other interdisciplinary programs of note?

Center for Health, Law, and Society Center for the Comparative Study of Metropolitan Growth

5. Have you made significant changes or innovations in your second and third year curriculum recently other than those described in response to the foregoing questions? If so please describe.

III. Curricular Reform Process

1. Did you gather data in connection with any of the curriculum reforms described earlier? If yes, and if you can share them, please attach a copy or describe their general findings.

The two centers with their interdisciplinary focus are the most significant changes; they were spearheaded by the faculty who direct them.

2. How did the most significant curricular change in your school in the last 10 years come about - - who initiated the change and by what process?

IV. Next Steps

1. What information would you like to receive about curricular reform?

Writing Courses/Approaches to Writing

2. Would you be interested in presenting any curricular reform(s) that you are undertaking in a special session at an AALS annual meeting? Which one(s)?

We would be happy to if you believe something we are doing is of interest to the academy

If so, would you be interested in doing so at the next (2007) meeting? It will be held in San Francisco, and spec

yes