

AALS COMMITTEE ON CURRICULUM

SURVEY OF INNOVATIONS IN LAW SCHOOL CURRICULA

The AALS has decided to focus on the issue of curriculum reform in American Law Schools, and would like to set up a process that enables law schools to share information about what is being done, help each other develop new initiatives, and generally catalyze the effort to bring law teaching into the 21st century. The first step in this process is a survey of current curriculum reform efforts. We understand that surveys come thick and fast these days, but we promise that this is not an effort to collect information that will then sit on someone's shelf, or in someone's hard drive. First, you'll receive information in return, information about new ideas and implementation strategies that other law schools have developed. Second, we'll use the results of the survey to design various settings where law school faculty and administrators can come together to share ideas and develop plans about reforming the law school curriculum.

The following questions are designed to be answered by brief statements, sometimes one or two words, sometimes one or two sentences. We would be delighted if you want to attach a longer description of any program or plan that you regard as particularly worth sharing. In addition, feel free to attach documents you've already prepared for other purposes.

I. First Year

1. Do you have an elective in the first year? No

If so, what does it consist of?

A limited number of courses specially designed for the first year

A limited number of upper division courses

Any upper division course the student chooses to take

Something else (please describe)

2. Do you offer or require any skills courses or training in the first year other than legal writing and/or Legal Research? If so, please describe.

We also require a one credit hour appellate advocacy course in the spring semester of the first year.

If you offer or require legal writing, is it something other than a separate class taught by specially-hired, non-tenure track instructors? If so, please describe.

Legal writing is a two credit hour component of a three credit hour legal research and writing course. The writing component is taught in small (18-20 students) sections by tenure track faculty members and by adjuncts if there are not enough tenure track faculty available. The one credit research component is taught in small sections by law library faculty with long term renewable contracts.

3. Aside from the electives and skills courses described above, do you require any course other than Torts, Contracts, Civil Procedure, Criminal Law, Property and Constitutional Law?

no

If so, what is it?

Legal Methods
Regulatory Law
International Law
Evidence
Criminal Procedure
Theories of Law
Other, please describe

4. Do you offer a separate curriculum in the first year that students can choose, or to which they are assigned? If so, please describe.

5. Have you made significant changes or innovations in your first year curriculum recently other than those described in response to the foregoing questions? If so please describe.

II. Second and Third Years

1. Do you offer a specialized track or concentration program in any of the following areas?

Business Law
Public Law
International Law
Transnational Law
Social Justice
Criminal Law and Procedure

Other, please describe

- Requires courses that other students can take as well (please specify)
- Offers special courses (please describe)
- Requires special courses (please describe)
 - Provides placements, internships or clinical program (please describe)
 - Grants a certificate (please tell us for what)
- Other features (please describe)

2. Apart from the standard live client clinics, and the clinical programs described in your answer to the previous question, do you offer any other kinds of clinical programs? If so, please describe.

3. What joint degree or accelerated degree programs do you offer?

JD/MPA

4. Other than the programs described above, do you have any other interdisciplinary programs of note?

5. Have you made significant changes or innovations in your second and third year curriculum recently other than those described in response to the foregoing questions? If so please describe.

We recently added a skills requirement for graduation. Students must take at least one skills elective course from a menu that includes clinics, trial practice and business and estate planning.

III. Curricular Reform Process

1. Did you gather data in connection with any of the curriculum reforms described earlier? If yes, and if you can share them, please attach a copy or describe their general findings.

2. How did the most significant curricular change in your school in the last 10 years come about - - who initiated the change and by what process?

The skills requirement was added as a response to a change in ABA standards. We also added a 'topics in law' category as a way to add courses on a temporary basis without requiring a permanent curriculum change. This category has allowed us to offer our students an online course originating from another law school. We have also used this category to offer specialized courses taught by a visiting and/or adjunct professor supported by temporary funding, such as a grant. These changes were initiated by the Curriculum Committee and approved by the faculty.

IV. Next Steps

1. What information would you like to receive about curricular reform?

I found the ten year survey done by the ABA to be very useful. Maybe we don't have to wait ten years for another similar survey?

2. Would you be interested in presenting any curricular reform(s) that you are undertaking in a special session at an AALS annual meeting? Which one(s)?

If so, would you be interested in doing so at the next (2007) meeting? It will be held in San Francisco, and spec
