Public Facing Section Webpages

AALS is in the process of revitalizing its public facing Section pages of the AALS website (example of a current Section page). In developing these pages, several resources will be added to support faculty and encourage involvement in Section activities.

Items that can be added to these pages include:

- Purpose Statements and Welcome Messages
- Section Bylaws
- Annual Meeting Program Information
- Calls for Papers
- Upcoming Networking Events
- Webinars and Webinar Replays
- Newsletters
- Photos from AALS events
- Awards
- Resources

All public facing information must be approved by AALS staff. The process for submitting public web content can be outlined as follows:

1. Section leaders confirm the materials they are submitting are in accordance with the core values of AALS. Political commentary, electioneering and other information that do not relate to law teaching are examples of content that should not be posted.
2. Section leaders submit materials to sections@aals.org, and specify whether they would like it placed on the member-only page or on the public facing page of the Section site.
3. Allow about one week for AALS to review the submitted content, and post it on the desired webpage.

Our goal in adding these resources is to develop more inviting, useful and relevant Sections pages that benefit faculty and their scholarly community.
