Calls for Papers: Emerging Technologies and The Future of Insurance

The AALS Sections on Insurance Law and Internet and Computer Law invite submissions for their co-sponsored program on “Emerging Technologies and The Future of Insurance” at the 2024 AALS Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C. (January 3–6, 2024).

We welcome submissions covering a broad range of issues, including (but not limited to) the implications of integrating new technologies, such as artificial intelligence, into insurance models and the delivery of insurance, as well as the role of insurance in addressing technological risks, including in the fields of cybersecurity, connected devices, autonomous vehicles, and biotechnology and life sciences.

The deadline for submissions is August 16, 2023. To submit, please email an abstract or a draft of an unpublished paper to Da Lin, dlin@richmond.edu. Please remove all identifying information from your submission; the subject line of the cover email should read: “Submission - AALS Emerging Technologies and Insurance.” Questions may also be directed to Professor Lin.
