MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

Dear Section Members,

As the Section for Law Professors with Disabilities and Allies nears the end of its third year, it has been an honor and a privilege to serve as the third Chair of this section. As you know, the primary purpose of the section leadership is to plan the programming for the annual AALS meeting. I could not be more excited to announce the great panels and events we have planned.

For the second year in a row, we are sponsoring a Junior Scholars Work in Progress session. We have five fabulous presenters and five discussants willing to give of their time and their talents, and of course, none of this would be possible without Pamela Foohey, who organized the session last year and this year. Thank you, Pamela! Please join us on Wednesday, January 3, 2024, 3:00–4:40 p.m.

On Thursday, January 4, we have our annual award ceremony, where we will present the Chai Feldblum award to one deserving scholar. The Chai Feldblum Award is intended to recognize exceptional work within the legal academy or in the legal profession toward the full inclusion of people with disabilities, and also offers an opportunity to honor Section members whose scholarly, teaching, clinical, or service work (whether or not disability-related) shows exceptional promise or has made exceptional contributions. We are keeping the recipient private (we think!), so please join us at noon on Thursday, January 4, to celebrate our award winner.

Later that afternoon, we will have our primary program, The Role of Self-Narrative in Legal Scholarship. This panel is a joint program with the Section on Scholarship and has four co-sponsors—Disability Law, Minority Groups, Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity Issues, and Women in Legal Education. The panel will explore how scholars choose when to incorporate their lived experiences into their scholarship. Panelists will discuss the benefits and costs of doing so, and will focus on highlighting members of groups who are underrepresented in legal academia. Thank you to executive committee member Kat Macfarlane for this great idea! We have great panelists lined up (see more on the next page), and I am very excited to moderate this panel. It's on Thursday, January 4, 3:00–4:40 p.m.

On Friday, January 5, 12:00–1:40 p.m., we are sponsoring a pedagogy program: Best Practices for the Law Student with a Disability Experience. The goal of this session is to have a conversation about how professors can improve their interactions with law students with disabilities and ultimately improve the student experience for students with disabilities. We have some great speakers lined up. Thank you to executive committee member Laura Hoffman for this idea and for moderating the panel.

Finally, thank you to my wonderful executive committee, without whom none of this programming would have been possible. Their names are on page 2, but I wanted to give a special shout-out to Katie Eyer and Megan Wright, the past chairs of this section, who guided me throughout the year. My sincere gratitude.

Nicole Buonocore Porter
