The Feature Film Selection: Reversal of Fortune

The Law and Film Series presents films chosen for their cinematic and legal value, identifying film resources for possible classroom instructional purposes, as well as for raising general awareness of law and film. For each of the two nights of film showings, we will present films chosen by the AALS Annual Meeting Film Advisory Committee. There will be brief discussions and commentary in connection with the films.

Reversal of Fortune is a 1990 film adapted from the 1985 book Reversal of Fortune: Inside the von Bülow Case, written by law professor Alan Dershowitz. The film recounts the true story of Claus von Bülow, charged with the attempted murder of his wife, socialite Sunny von Bülow who is in a coma after falling into diabetic shock. He turns to Professor Dershowitz for help with his case. Although initially hesitant to take the case and struggling with questions of von Bülow's guilt or innocence, Professor Dershowitz ultimately does so, seeking legal exoneration for his client with the help of his law students. The film stars Jeremy Irons, Glenn Close, and Ron Silver.

David B. Wilkins, Harvard Law School

In this time of dramatic change for both the legal profession and society, the need for an ethical vision of lawyering is all the more challenging and urgent. Law schools have a crucial role to play. Not only in preparing students to become effective expert technicians, wise counselors, and effective leaders, but also in generating knowledge about law and legal institutions and the relationship between these institutions and societal welfare. The authors’ article encourages deans and faculty to recognize the important role that law schools play as part of the legal profession and to reexamine their own obligations to the legal framework and society, to the law school as an institution, and to students.

The opening plenary includes two of the three authors of the joint essay Lawyers as Professionals and Citizens: Key Roles and Responsibilities in the 21st Century. Their essay presents a practical vision of the responsibilities of lawyers as both [6530] AALS Reception for Legal Educators from Law Schools Outside the U.S.

Law increasingly exists in a global context, both in the delivery of legal services and legal education itself. As educators, we aspire to help students develop the global competencies and connections needed for them to take part fully in the future of the legal profession. A more international perspective can also enrich our own scholarship and teaching. AALS invites legal educators from outside the United States to attend this reception held in their honor. The reception will provide an opportunity to mingle with colleagues from law schools all around the globe and forge important potential partnerships and connections.
