Welcome to San Francisco for the 111th Annual Meeting of the Association of American Law Schools

Workshop for Pretenured Law School Teachers of Color

Why Attend?

Minority law teachers face special challenges in the legal academy, starting from their first day of teaching. At this workshop, diverse panels of experienced and successful law professors will offer ways to successfully meet these challenges as they arise in the context of scholarship, teaching, service, and the tenure process. By bringing together faculty who are navigating similar career paths, the workshop will facilitate development of relationships that can provide long-term sources of support.

Who Should Attend?

The workshop will be of interest to all minoritized law school teachers who are navigating the tenure process and looking for guidance and encouragement.

AALS would like to thank the Law School Admission Council for their generous grant in support of this Workshop.

This final session will focus on service and teaching. With regard to service, it will challenge participants to develop service to their school, university, profession, and community as outlets for their academic and non-academic passions and interests. How do you approach the third prong of the tripartite journey toward tenure? There is service and service. Your service obligations may appear to be a chore, a burden (and, sometimes, they really are!). But you have the power to transform that perception and reality. Service is a gateway to learning about, and being active and influential in, the operation of your school. Your service provides an opportunity to interact with your colleagues—and for them to interact with you—to build strong personal and professional relationships. (On both sides, there is ongoing interactive assessment of participants' character, capability, and potential.) This session will illustrate the ways in which the power resides with you to transform your service obligations, create your own service opportunities, and follow your passion in order to develop and extend your areas of expertise and your networks at the same time.

With regard to teaching, law professors of color often report special challenges in the classroom stemming from dynamics that are hard to spot and to know how to address. This session will identify specific issues that may be of concern. How do I deal with difficult students? How do I ensure diverse participation in the classroom? How should I address the various differences among students — including racial, sexual orientation, or gender differences — and differences between students and myself? The panelists will offer some advice on how to plan and to facilitate classroom teaching in both large and small courses, and to be a more effective teacher. Their remarks will be followed by a lengthy period for questions and interactive discussion.

Cancellations will not be accepted by phone.

For changes or cancellations after December 21, please wait until December 23 and call the hotel directly.

Beware of Housing “Pirates” and “Poachers”

When AALS secures sleeping rooms at hotels for our Annual Meeting (commonly referred to as room blocks), we research the properties to make certain that our attendees will be adequately accommodated. The room block is established to ensure that sleeping rooms meet our standards and are offered at the discounted price.

In the past, registrants have sometimes been contacted with offers for cut-rate housing. The intent is to convince you that the offer is made on behalf of AALS, or that the soliciting company is a viable alternative to Experient. This is not true. Housing for the AALS Annual Meeting is handled exclusively by Experient, through online booking only once you have registered for the Annual Meeting.

Don't be misled! If you are contacted by anyone asking if you need a room for the Annual Meeting, please do not make a reservation or provide a method of payment. We ask that you get as much information as you can about the caller and pass it on Mary Cullen, AALS Associate Director, Meetings and Exhibits, at (202) 296-8851 or mcullen@aals.org.
