Message from the Chair

Alan Kirtley (U. Washington), Chair, Section on Clinical Legal Education

This has been an exciting and eventful year for our Section with much to report. Before reflecting back, however, I want to let you know what is coming up.

LOOKING FORWARD—

- AALS Annual Meeting and Section Luncheon: The 2012 AALS Annual Meeting will be held from January 4-8 in Washington, D.C. The Section’s luncheon will take place on Saturday, January 7, beginning at 12:15 p.m., in Washington Room 1, Exhibition Level, of the Washington Marriott Wardman Park Hotel.

- Pincus Award: Each year during the Section’s luncheon, the Pincus Award is presented to honor a clinician’s contributions to clinical legal education and the advancement of justice. This year’s recipient is most deserving: Bob Kuehn (Wash U). Thanks go to the Section’s Awards Committee for handling what is always a challenging selection process. The Committee members are Miye Goishi (Hastings), Chair; Alex Scherr (Georgia), Chair-elect; Alan Minuskin (Boston College); Dana Thompson (Michigan); and Susan Jones (GWU). Please see the Awards Committee’s report on page 10 for detail on Bob’s remarkable career.

- Section’s Business Meeting: At the end of the luncheon, the Section will hold its annual business meeting. The only scheduled item of business is the election of new officers and members of the Executive Committee. The Nominating Committee did an excellent job again this year of presenting the membership with a talented and diverse slate of candidates. The Nominating Committee members are JoNel Newman (Miami), Chair; Suzette Melendez (Syracuse); David Thronson (Nevada); Kurt Eggert (Chapman);

This year’s slate of nominees is:

Co-Chairs Elect: Marisa Cianciarulo (Chapman) and Liz Cooper (Fordham), two-year terms.

Treasurer: Tom Kelley (North Carolina), three-year term.

Section Executive Committee Members: Alicia Alvarez (Michigan), three-year term; Eduardo Capulong (Montana), three-year term; and, Lisa Bliss (Georgia State), one-year term (remaining on unexpired term of Liz Cooper).

Bob Jones (Notre Dame) will be the 2012 Section Chair!

Additional candidate information is in the Nominating Committee’s report on page 8.

- Section’s Joint Program: The Section’s Joint Program, developed with the Poverty Law Section, will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, January 7th, immediately following the Section luncheon and business meeting. The title of this year’s program is “Theory and Praxis in Reducing Women’s Poverty.” The program is described on page 6-7. This year’s Annual Meeting Committee has developed a program of great interest and importance. The Committee members are Annette Appell (Wash U), co-chair; Emily Benfer (Loyola Chicago), co-chair; Jeff Selbin (Berkeley); Davida Finger (Loyola N.O.); LaShanda Taylor (UDC Clarke); and Ann Cammet (UNLV).

- 2012 Clinical Conference: The 2012 AALS Conference on Clinical Legal Education will be held April 30-May 3, 2012, at the Westin Bonaventure Hotel, Los Angeles, California. The title of this year’s conference is “Takeaways for Clinical Teaching and Assessment in a Changing Environment.” The conference planning committee members are Peter Joy, (Wash U), Chair; Jon Dubin, (Rutgers-Newark); Margaret Jackson, (North Dakota); Luz Molina (Loyola-New Orleans); and Jayesh Rathod (American).

LOOKING BACK AT 2011

- June 2011 Clinical Conference: The highlight of the year has to be this year’s clinical conference in Seattle. It was a groundbreaking event. For the first time ever at an AALS meeting, non-clinical faculty, deans, and clinicians came together to discuss integrative curricular approaches to legal education favored by the Carnegie Report. The planning committee responsible for the highly successful conference was Elliott Milstein (American), co-chair; Amy Applegate (Indiana Maurer), co-chair; Bryan Adamson (Seattle U.); Elizabeth Cooper (Fordham); Carolyn Grose (Wm. Mitchell); Donna Lee (CUNY); and Barbara Schatz (Columbia). At the conference, the Shanara M. Gilbert Award was presented to Nekima Levy-Pounds (St. Thomas –MN).

- ABA Accreditation Standards: These have been threatening times for the clinical community. The ABA Standards Review Committee is proposing changes to the Accreditation Standards for law schools that, if adopted, will reverse years of clinician efforts to provide clinicians security of position, academic freedom, and participation rights in law school governance. The Section’s work within the AALS leadership has resulted in AALS submissions to the Review Committee highly critical of its proposed changes. Leading this effort for the Section are Elizabeth Cooper (Fordham) and Amy Applegate (Indiana Maurer). While the Section has done its part, CLEA has led this effort and all of us in the clinical community are very appreciative.

- Diversity: This year there has been a significant increase in the number of members of minority groups appointed to the Section’s committees and leadership positions. Many contributed to this accomplishment: the Section’s Nominating Committee (listed above); Clinicians of Color Committee, Carwina Weng (Indiana-Maurer), co-chair, and Allison Bethel (John Marshall), co-chair; and the Enhancing Diversity in Leadership Committee, chaired by Charles Auffant (Rutgers-Newark).

- Desk Reference: A new and improved version of the Clinician’s Desk Reference was distributed at the June 2011 Clinical Conference and at various regional conferences. The editors of the revision were Amy Applegate (Indiana Maurer) and Jayesh Rathod (American), and they received help from the Section’s Membership, Outreach and Training Committee co-chaired by Cynthia Batt (Temple), Margaret Johnson (Baltimore), and Randi Mandelbaum (Rutgers–Newark).

- Online Resource Library: The Section’s Communications Committee, co-chaired by David Santacroce (Michigan) and Matt Andres (Cooley), with the help of Bob Jones (Notre Dame), have continued to organize, gather materials, and improve the Section’s online resource library on the AALS platform. Please send new items to Matt at andresm@cooley.edu.

- Transactional Law Clinics Committee: A new Transactional Law Clinics Committee was launched by the Executive Committee this year. The Committee, chaired by Susan Jones (GWU), was formed to create a “home” within the Section for the increasing number of clinicians who teach and represent clients in transactional practice. In a similar vein, our Section also gave its support for the creation of a new AALS Section – the Section on Transactional Law and Skills.

- New Section Bylaws: The Section’s governance structure was significantly improved by the membership’s adoption of a comprehensive set of new bylaws at the 2011 Annual Meeting.
This was a highlight at least for the drafting committee that labored on the project with patience and perseverance for eighteen-months. Thanks to the committee members: Charles Auffant (Rutgers-Newark), Beth Belmont (Washington and Lee); Bob Jones (Notre Dame); and Alan Kirtley (U of Washington), chair.

- Section Committees: As you can see above, the Section’s important work is carried out by its committees. Please take the time to read the committee reports that follow to learn more about the creative and exciting work going on in the Section. The Section’s Executive Committee was the force behind the scenes this year moving the Section’s agenda forward.

Joining me on the Executive Committee were: Bob Jones (Notre Dame), chair-elect; Amy Applegate (Indiana Maurer), immediate past chair; Beth Belmont (Washington and Lee), treasurer; Marisa Silenzi Cianciarulo (Chapman), secretary; Andrea Seielstad (Dayton); Charles Auffant (Rutgers-Newark); Elizabeth Cooper (Fordham); Mary Jo Hunter (Hamline); and Jayesh Rathod (American).

Thanks for a job well done to Andrea Seielstad whose term is ending, as is Beth Belmont’s. Beth deserves an extra-large “thank you” for her generous six years of service as the Section’s treasurer, guiding us through the shoals of AALS regulations.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE –

The Section needs your ideas and service. The Section’s Executive Committee will be holding a retreat at the 2012 Annual Meeting to discuss ways to improve member services. Please contact me (kirtley@u.washington.edu) or the incoming chair Bob Jones (rjones1@nd.edu) with your ideas and to volunteer to serve on a Section committee.

The Section needs your support to continue its important work. Members of the Executive Committee are contacting every clinical program director and encouraging the directors to sign up and pay membership dues for all their clinicians. Please check with your director to make sure that is happening at your law school. If payment as a group is not possible at your school, you may pay online at: https://memberaccess.aals.org/eWeb/dynamicpage.aspx?webcode=ChpDetail&chp_cst_key=2546c8e7-1cda-46eb-b9f3-174fc509160b. Section membership dues are only $15/year for the 2011-12 academic year.

Finally, great appreciation and thanks go to the Section’s Newsletter editor, Liz Hubertz (Wash U.). Liz’s work is vital to the Section’s sense of community.

Thank you everyone for your service to the Section, and for making my year as chair such a rewarding experience.

Alan
Notice of Election of New Officers and Members of the Executive Committee
AALS Section on Clinical Legal Education

To the Members of the AALS Section on Clinical Legal Education: There will be a membership vote on a slate of new Section officers and members of the Executive Committee during the Section’s business meeting on Saturday, January 7, 2012 at the AALS Annual Meeting.

The following slate of new Section officers and members of the Executive Committee was recommended by the Section’s Nominating Committee, and the slate has received the unanimous approval of the Section’s Executive Committee:

Co-Chairs Elect:
Marisa Cianciarulo (Chapman) (two-year term)
Elizabeth Cooper (Fordham) (two-year term)

Treasurer:
Thomas Kelley (North Carolina) (three-year term)

Members of the Executive Committee:
Alicia Alvarez (Michigan) (three-year term)
Eduardo Capulong (Montana) (three-year term)
Lisa Bliss (Georgia State) (two-year term - completing unexpired term of Elizabeth Cooper)

Please see the Nominating Committee’s Report on the following page for information about the candidates.

The Section’s bylaws also permit nominations from the floor.
This joint session, sponsored by the Poverty Law and Clinical Legal Education Sections, will focus on women in poverty and the role of advocacy in assisting poor women and addressing the conditions that contribute to the gender and race of poverty. Panelists will examine the reasons that women, especially those from minority communities, are more likely to experience poverty, the negative consequences of poverty in their lives, and the legal and social systems that support the status quo. Topics include challenges facing families with members who have disabilities, battered mothers, migrant farmworkers, and innovative approaches toward solutions, such as community empowerment and interdisciplinary pedagogy, which are vital to understanding and ending poverty among women. The legal academy has a unique opportunity to develop and disseminate theory and information about the legal systems and processes that create and perpetuate the low socio-economic status of women and minority communities. Clinicians and poverty law teachers are particularly well situated to identify and address these issues through our teaching and research.

AALS Clinical Section Nominating Committee
2012 Clinical Section Executive Committee Nominations Announced

By JoNel Newman, Chair. This fall our Section’s Nominating Committee (Kurt Eggert, Chapman University School of Law, Suzette Meléndez, Syracuse University College of Law, JoNel Newman, University of Miami School of Law, David Thronson, Michigan State University College of Law and Carl Warren, University of Minnesota Law School), had the privilege of reviewing a very impressive group of nominees for Executive Committee positions. We thank all of our colleagues who generously volunteered to serve. We prepared the following slate, which has been approved by the Executive Committee and AALS. We are therefore pleased to submit the following slate to the Section for its consideration at our January meeting:

- Co-Chairs-Elect: Marisa Cianciarulo (Chapman) and Elizabeth Cooper (Fordham). Both Co-Chair Elect Nominees have a record of significant service on the Section’s Executive Committee and with AALS more broadly.

- Treasurer: Thomas Kelley (University of North Carolina). Tom’s record of service to the AALS includes a previous stint as Chair of the Section on Africa and Executive Committee membership in the Nonprofit Law and Philanthropy Section. Tom serves as Director of Clinical Programs at UNC and co-supervises its Community Development Law Clinic.

- Section Executive Committee (three year terms): Alicia Alvarez (University of Michigan) and Eduardo Capulong (University of Montana). Alicia is Clinical Professor and Director of the Urban Communities Clinic at University of Michigan and has served on numerous AALS Clinical Section Conference Planning Committees, as a former Chair of the Nominations Committee, and as Chair of the AALS’s Poverty Law Section. Eduardo is the Director of the Mediation Clinic at the University of Montana School of Law, serves on the Board of Directors of Plains Justice, and has previously served on the Planning Committee for the Northwest Clinician’s Conference.

- Section Executive Committee (two-year unexpired term of Elizabeth Cooper): Lisa Bliss (Georgia State). Lisa presently serves as a board member and committee chair for the Clinical Legal Education Association, co-chairing the "Best Practices in Legal Education” Implementation Committee. She is particularly interested in collaborating with other clinicians for the advancement of clinical legal education. Lisa is an Associate Clinical Professor and Co-Director, Health Law Partnership, Georgia State University College of Law.

We hope you will agree that these are extraordinarily well-qualified candidates with much to offer our Section. We hope the many other colleagues who volunteered to serve in this capacity will continue to work with the Section. We are grateful to everyone who participated in this process.

ADR COMMITTEE

Greetings! We’re pleased to inform you that Jim Stark has agreed to join us as Co-Chair of the ADR Committee. As many of you know, Jim has directed the mediation clinic at University of Connecticut law school for many years and he is the co-author (with Doug Frenkel of U. Penn.) of a mediation casebook, The Practice of Mediation. Welcome, Jim!

It was great to see so many clinical colleagues at the ABA Section of Dispute Resolution conference in Denver in April. There was a vast selection of interesting presentations by clinicians and it was painful having to choose among the concurrent offerings. With the Legal Educators Colloquium and Shop Talk programs on Saturday, there are more opportunities than ever to connect with ADR colleagues and bring home some creative nuggets for teaching and scholarship.

In addition to the ABA conference, a number of law schools regularly host work-in-progress roundtables for clinicians writing on dispute resolution topics. In fact, all three of us presented papers at the last one hosted by Washington University law school in St. Louis. The final products from that roundtable are published in the Washington University Journal of Law & Policy volume 34, “New Directions in ADR and Clinical Education”.

In past breakfast meetings of this committee, attendees have generated ideas for the group, such as book discussions and teaching demonstrations. With the number of ADR conferences and workshops competing for our time (and limited budgets), this is the challenge: what is the unique value-added of our clinical sub-group? On what projects, discussions, and activities would you like our group to focus? What could this committee do that would enrich your teaching and scholarship, benefit the theory and practice of ADR, and be

AWARDS COMMITTEE

The Awards Committee (Susan Jones, George Washington; Alan Minuskin, Boston College; Alex Scherr, Georgia; Dana Thompson, Michigan; and Miye Goishi, Hastings) had the difficult task of recommending the 2012 William Pincus Award recipient. As is always the case, all the nominees were well qualified and truly outstanding. After its deliberations, the Committee enthusiastically recommended Professor Robert R. Kuehn. The Committee felt that Bob’s career embodied the ideals represented by past recipients of the Pincus Award. Bob is a professor of law, co-director of the Interdisciplinary Environmental Clinic, and Associate Dean for Clinical Education at Washington University School of Law. He has taught a wide variety of clinical and environmental law courses.

One of Professor Kuehn’s most significant contributions has been his work on behalf of clinical programs subjected to political interference. After successfully resisting changes to student practice rules at Tulane, Bob assembled quick response teams that are and have been available to assist when other clinics are threatened by political attacks. The most recent of a string of efforts that illustrate the effectiveness of this group is the successful campaign on behalf of the University of Maryland’s Environmental Law Clinic.

Professor Kuehn has also been a leader in the movement to protect and advance the status of clinicians in the academy. He has served in numerous roles in the AALS, CSALE and CLEA. Professor Kuehn is a highly regarded teacher, mentor, and colleague in the academy. Finally, Professor Kuehn’s scholarly interests and writing are highly regarded, and wide-ranging. Congratulations to Bob for this much deserved recognition!

COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE

The Communications Committee is working hard to fill up and make as useful as possible the Clinical Section’s online resource library, which contains clinical teaching materials, handouts and presentations from numerous conferences, information on Clinical Section activities, and other valuable resources on countless topics of interest to clinicians. The website address for the file library is connect.aals.org/p/co/ly/gid=85. If you have documents that you believe would be important to share with your fellow clinicians, particularly clinical syllabi or materials for teaching particular skills, please submit them to Communications Committee Co-Chair Matt Andres at andresm@cooley.edu. We are excited to provide you access to the collective brilliance of the clinical community right at your fingertips, and your contributions of materials can make this possible!

EXTERNSHIP COMMITTEE

As externship opportunities continue to expand and improve at virtually every law school across the country, the Externship Committee is working hard with its new sub-committees (membership & outreach, best practices, new clinicians, technology, site visits, standards, remote placements, international) to provide enhanced resources for the externship community. We are looking forward to a record turnout at the AALS Conference in January where we will be hosting a number of events including a dinner at a local restaurant and what we expect will be a very informative committee meeting/workshop that will focus new innovations in web-based teaching for students in remote placements.

We are also getting geared up for our big bi-annual conference, Externships 6, which is being co-hosted this year by Harvard Law School and Northeastern School of Law from March 1-4, 2012. The conference is shaping up to be extraordinary and we strongly encourage anybody with an interest in externship teaching to attend. Conference registration is now opened at northeastern.edu/law/academics/conferences/externships6. Additional information about all these activities will be posted periodically on Lextern@lists.cua.edu (sign up if you haven’t already!) In addition, if you have any specific questions please don’t hesitate to contact Committee Co-Chair Jennifer Zawid at jzawid@law.miami.edu or Committee Co-Chair Nancy Maurer at nmaur@albanylaw.edu. We look forward to a busy and productive... year during this period of unprecedented growth.

SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE

The Scholarship Committee has three major initiatives this year. First, we will be organizing works-in-progress sessions at this year’s clinical conference in Los Angeles. We are pleased to report that works-in-progress will have their own time slot this year, which will ensure ample attendance and lively discussion of papers presented. The Committee will solicit paper proposals after the winter break. Second, the Scholarship Committee continues to operate the Clinical Peer Network for scholars seeking individualized feedback on scholarly works-in-progress from another clinical teacher with a shared substantive interest. (Please see the notice about the peer network in this issue of the newsletter.) Third, the Scholarship Committee plans to sponsor one of the small group sessions at the annual clinical conference, entitled the Scholarship Support and Development Workgroup. In this workgroup, participants talk about the writing and placement process, encourage development as scholars, and share ideas about writing projects. If you have suggestions for how the committee can help support scholarship, please contact one of the co-chairs, Michele Gilman (mgilman@ubalt.edu) or Jeffrey Pokorak (jpokorak@suffolk.edu). Happy writing!

CLEA News for December 2011

The Clinical Legal Education Association (CLEA), is looking forward to the AALS 2012 Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C. Please join us at the CLEA membership meeting at American University Washington College of Law on Friday morning, January 6 at 8 AM. Watch the listserv for the exact location. We will talk about CLEA’s ongoing work on behalf of clinical education. In addition to our advocacy before the Standards Review Committee, we will discuss our responses to recent incidents of political interference with clinics, The Best Practices Project and other important initiatives. Coffee will be served and we will try to have big cups for this early meeting.

CLEA will also hold a meeting of the Board of Directors at American University Washington College of Law on Friday morning January 6 at 9 AM. CLEA Board meetings are open to all and attending a Board meeting can be a great way to learn more and get involved. CLEA is a very active all volunteer organization. It takes the work of many people to advocate, organize, educate and foster collaboration across the many groups who share our concerns and goals. Please come to our meetings and join our work.

In the last AALS newsletter, you were asked to renew your membership. I am pleased to report that many of you did and CLEA now has over 1000 members. This is a wonderful milestone for CLEA, even as we continue to add members to better serve our community. Membership makes a difference. Renew in the spring, and urge others who care about legal education, diversity and social justice to join CLEA. We are strong when we act together.

CLEA has continued its close involvement in the Standards Review Committee’s comprehensive review of the Accreditation Standards. The Standards Review Committee met in Chicago on November 12 & 13. This was the first meeting under the new chair, Professor Jeffrey E. Lewis and seven new members. The Committee held an open forum and heard from the Chair of the Council on Legal Education, Dean John O’Brien and representatives from the AAUP, AALS, SALT, LWI, Legal Transparency, as well as other groups and individuals. Dean O’Brien expressed his desire that everyone feel heard, even as not everyone is going to be happy the new Standards.

In its presentation to the Standards Review Committee, CLEA noted both opportunities and dangers in reforming the Standards. CLEA urged the Committee to think about challenges, bad actors and the important role of Standards in insuring a baseline of quality in legal education. CLEA welcomed innovations in the area of outcomes assessment, even as we continued to urge that contemporary lawyering requires a considerably range of skills and values than the current version suggests. Finally, we noted the key role the Standards have played in supporting the growth of clinical legal education over the past thirty years and the need for continued support, given that ongoing issues for the clinics at Rutgers Newark and Maryland.

CLEA noted that the ABA, representing the profession, has always understood that clinicians must be protected in their dual roles. As practicing lawyers, clinicians need to exercise independent legal judgment and as teachers, academic freedom is essential. CLEA urged the ABA to continue its long, vital tradition of supporting clinical legal education.

CLEA is also working with several clinics now facing or threatened with political interference. The lawsuit seeking records from a clinic as Rutgers Newark Law School will soon be heard in the New Jersey Supreme Court. In Maryland, the Governor has criticized a clinic for representing its client in a meritorious lawsuit. In other, less public cases, clinicians face other pressures to put expediency above principle. Our work in response to political interference, along with our advocacy to the ABA, the Department of Education and our engagement in the current public debate on legal education is making a difference.

Have you visited the CLEA Website lately? We hope you will find it more informative and easier to use than ever. Check later this month for election results, updates on CLEA activities and other news.

I close with thanks to everyone who works so hard in pursuit of our shared mission and offer particular thanks to our partners in the AALS. CLEA has strengthened its working relationships with the leadership of the AALS Clinical Section in recent years. There have been real benefits to our community and it is a great pleasure to work with such talented people. This newsletter marks the end of my CLEA presidential term. Please accept my thanks for this tremendous opportunity to serve and for all the support I have enjoyed. Together, we are making a difference.

Albany Law School students from the Civil Rights and Disability Law Clinic presented at a CLE training during the 2011 N.Y. State Commission on Quality of Care & Advocacy for Persons with Disabilities Contractor’s Meeting. The students along with a representative from Disabilities Advocates Inc. (DAI) – spoke about the Court of Appeals brief they recently wrote together with the law firm Patterson, Belknap, Web and Tyler. The brief concerns the refusal of the N.Y. State Office of Mental Retardation to release records requested by the law school and DAI in an investigation of neglect from the state agency, concerning the agency’s unnecessary institutionalization of individuals with developmental disabilities. The Court is expected to hear oral arguments on the case sometime in the spring. Georgetown University Law Center is proud to share the news that two of its clinics were recently given awards. Our Appellate Litigation Clinic received the Pro Bono Award From the Catholic Legal Immigration Network, Inc (CLINIC). The award recognizes “the invaluable contributions made to the Board of Immigration Appeals Pro Bono Project and to the vulnerable populations that the Project serves.”

Georgetown’s E. Barrett Prettyman and Stuart Stiller Post-Graduate Fellowship Program was honored with the Southern Center for Human Rights’ Frederick Douglass Award. Details at: http://www.law.georgetown.edu/news/releases/october.27.2011.html.

Professor Nicole S. Dandridge, Director of the Michigan State University College of Law Small Business & Nonprofit Clinic recently secured a Creating Inclusive Excellence Grant from the Michigan State University Office for Inclusion and Intercultural Initiatives. The grant provides funds for the clinic’s year-long Community Economic Development Inclusiveness Project to create an interdisciplinary cultural intelligence and advanced business law curriculum for students who then will provide legal assistance to campus and community entrepreneurs, with a heightened outreach to the Chinese community. The
The clinic is currently working in partnership with several university units and nonprofit organizations to implement the project. The clinic has developed a special curriculum where students will receive cultural competency and multi-cultural business training and instruction.

In addition, the Small Business & Nonprofit Clinic, together with the Kalamazoo Region Small Business and Technology Development Center, Kalamazoo Chamber of Commerce, ONEPlace at Kalamazoo Public Library, Community Legal Resources and the Kalamazoo Bar Pro Bono Committee, helped to develop and implement a project to build cooperative assistance for small businesses and nonprofit organizations in the Kalamazoo, MI area.

The Michigan State University College of Law Housing Law Clinic announces its Fair Housing Project, an educational and community outreach and advocacy effort designed to increase public knowledge of fair housing laws in Michigan and around the country. Students will help coordinate educational programs for the public, research and write publications on fair housing, provide informational materials via the clinic’s website, arrange guest lectures by experts in the field, and collaborate with fair housing centers across the state. According to Brian Gilmore, Associate Clinical Professor of Law and Director of the Housing Law Clinic, the project is designed to address a lack of fair housing resources in the immediate area.

In October 2011 the clinical programs at the Dickinson School of Law at Penn State — University Park location moved to a brand new, dedicated clinic office. The clinic is located just a few blocks from our law school’s main building. Shown in the photo is the student work space, which includes workstations in a variety of styles to accommodate different student and case needs. The clinic also has numerous private offices where students can work quietly or meet with clients, and two conference rooms with the state-of-the art audio-visual capability that has become of our school’s signature features. The clinic space is shared by faculty and students in our Family Law Clinic, Children’s Advocacy Clinic, Rural Economic Development Clinic, Civil Rights Appellate Clinic, Center for Immigrants Rights, and starting in Spring 2012 our new venture in partnership with Penn State’s College of Engineering, the International Sustainable Development Program.
The University of Baltimore School of Law Center for Families, Children and the Courts (CFCC) has released its Benchbook on Substance Abuse and Addiction for Family Courts. The benchbook provides information of interest and relevance to family court judges, judicial officers, court staff, and attorneys who are called to deal, directly and indirectly, with substance abuse issues on a daily basis. It is an outgrowth of a conference, “A Family Disease: The Impact of Addiction and Substance Abuse on Children, Families, Family Courts, and Communities,” that CFCC co-sponsored with the American Bar Association Standing Committee on Substance Abuse, the Maryland Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC), and the Open Society Institute-Baltimore (OSI).

Additionally, in partnership with the Association of Family and Conciliation Courts (AFCC), CFCC will host two two-day-long training programs for attorneys, parenting coordinators, mediators, judicial officers, mental health professionals, and other who work with separating and/or divorcing families. William A. Eddy, MSA, JD, will present “Managing Personality-Disordered Parents” on December 5-6 and Barbara Jo Fidler, Ph.D., Acc.FM, will speak on “Children and Divorce: The Voice of the Child and Interventions When Children Resist Parental Contact” on December 7-8 at the University of Baltimore School of Law.

This fall marks the launch of the inaugural class of the Community Economic Development Clinic at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law taught by Professor Patience Crowder and Whiting Clinical Fellow Eric Franklin. Ten 2L and 3L students represent a wide variety of organizational clients, including a furniture designer, a video game retailer with multiple locations, an environmental consultant, a nonprofit organization promoting the role of youth advocacy in environmental justice, and a neighborhood association organized to maximize community participation in a redevelopment project. The diverse range of clients includes women and minority small business owners and community-based organizations working to serve underserved communities, and the waiting list continues to grow. To top off the exciting launch, the CED received a $5,000 grant from Colorado State Bank and Trust.

In January 2008, the Friends of Animals, represented by the Environmental Law Clinic at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law petitioned the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service requesting that 14 species be protected under the Endangered Species Act (August 9, 2011). The Service has recently proposed to list the Philippine cockatoo and the yellow-crested cockatoo (including all four subspecies) as “endangered” and the white cockatoo as “threatened” due to a variety of threats, primarily the illegal collection of the birds for global trade. The Clinic, taught by Assistant Professor Michael Harris, has also worked on local environmental justice issues which include helping the residents of Elyria seek removal or remediation of a large pile of recycling materials, known as “Shingle Mountain.”

The Civil Rights Clinic, led by Associate Professor Laura Rovner, Ronald V. Yegge Clinical Director, represented four federal prisoners, convicted of terrorism-related crimes, challenged the conditions of their confinement after spending years in solitary and other restrictive environments. The Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals heard oral argument on these claims last November.

Joint efforts of students and faculty at the University of the District of Columbia David A. Clarke School of Law’s Community Development Law Clinic and Housing and Consumer Law Clinic resulted in a judgment for $38,300 in compensatory damages and $100,000 in punitive damages in a case involving a local unlicensed management company’s embezzlement of $35,000 from a low-income cooperative, and $3,300 in management fees for services that were not performed. The legal team included 3L’s Diane Seay, Aimellia Siemson, and Jennifer Blemur; UDC-DCSL Professors Louise Howells, Alysia Robben, and Ed Allen served as supervising attorneys; and Professor Thomas Mack served as a consulting attorney, assisting with crafting the complaint and developing the legal strategy. The defendants embezzled the Cooperative’s funds, and thus the impact of this crime was felt by the families with the lowest incomes.

Based upon a substantial grant from the law firm of Crowell & Moring in honor and in memory of the firm’s founding partner, Took Crowell, the UDC law school has expanded its Juvenile and Special Education Law Clinic and, in the fall of 2010, established the Took Crowell Institute for At-Risk Youth. Professor Joseph Tulman directs the clinic and the institute. Through this project, first- and second-year law students from several D.C. law schools will represent parents and children in school discipline matters. Juvenile and Special Education Law Clinic faculty continue experimenting with clinical pedagogy and creative approaches to the delivery of legal services. Working with the National Homecomers Academy, a community-based organization, the clinic has opened during the fall of 2011 an outreach office in a low-income neighborhood in Southeast D.C. Law students in the clinic go with supervisors to the clinic outreach office to be available for intake and for quick advice and referrals.

Under the supervision of Clinical Teaching Fellow Maunica Sthanki, Immigration and Human Rights Clinic students successfully represented a mentally disabled man from Tanzania. The Immigration Court granted the client relief from removal under the Convention Against Torture and he has been released from custody.

Due to the work of University of Houston Law Center Immigration Clinic students, Andrea Penedo (3L) and Catherine Yen, now graduated, the Board of Immigration Appeals issued a precedential decision, Matter of M-A-M-, 25 I & N Dec. 474 (BIA 2011), which set forth procedural safeguards for mentally incompetent individuals in removal proceedings. Under the supervision of Professor Janet Beck, the students filed a motion to remand as well as an appellate brief, which resulted in the Board’s remanding the case to the Immigration Judge to proceed according to the instructions set out in the Board’s decision. This case has been attracting nationwide attention.

Vermont Law School is pleased to report that the Environmental and Natural Resources Law Clinic (ENRLC) recently filed a notice of intent to sue the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers over the agency’s handling of a proposed natural gas pipeline through ecologically sensitive areas of Puerto Rico. ENRLC is representing a coalition of community and conservation groups concerned about the impact on the island; co-counsel for the coalition include the University of Puerto Rico’s Environmental Law Clinic, Puerto Rico Legal Services and other attorneys. "Our clients' objective is to ensure that the Corps fully complies with federal laws designed to safeguard endangered species and sensitive ecosystems as well as to protect the citizens of Puerto Rico from safety risks and other adverse impacts of the proposed pipeline,” said ENRLC Professor Pat Parenteau, who co-supervises the case with ENRLC Director Teresa Clemmer.

Washington University School of Law is offering a new Washington, D.C. area intellectual property field placement for students pursuing a career focused on the preparation, filing, and prosecution of patent applications. Students in the Patent Law Field Placement work full-time in either the fall or spring semester at the law firm of Oliff & Berridge in Alexandria, Va. The students are expected to perform as first-year associates and will prepare responses to patent office actions, draft amended patent claims, and prepare communications with clients. After formal training, the students are paired with a mentor at the firm and given a slate of projects for the semester.

In addition, the law school just enrolled its first students in the New York City Regulatory & Business Externship. The semester-long clinical experience gives students the opportunity to learn firsthand about the practice and regulation of business associations, investment banking, and corporate and securities regulation. The placement sites for the students include the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA), New York City Department of Finance, Standard & Poor’s/McGraw Hill, and New York Attorney General’s Office. The program is modeled on the school’s longstanding, highly-successful Congressional & Administrative Law Externship in Washington, D.C.
The Interdisciplinary Environmental Clinic scored a significant victory in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit on the issue of the standing of an environmental organization to challenge a permit for construction of a new landfill. “The magnitude, as distinct from the directness, of the injury is not critical to the concerns that underlie the requirement of standing, and so denying a person who derives pleasure from watching wildlife the opportunity to watch it is a sufficient injury to confer standing,” wrote Judge Richard Posner in the court’s opinion.

The University of Maryland’s International Clinic is embarking on its third year of human rights work in Namibia. The Namibia portion of the Clinic, led by Professor Barbara Olshansky, is working with local and international groups to establish the human right to water for Namibia’s rural population who lack access to the minimum amount of water necessary for human survival. The Clinic has also been collaborating with DLA Piper’s New Perimeter Pro Bono program and the Namibia Paralegal Association (NPA) to draft the first comprehensive guide, entitled Namibian Law and Paralegal Skills Manual. In Namibia, paralegals are human rights educators and advocates who volunteer and serve as the sole source of access to justice for Namibia’s rural poor.
HIRING and PROMOTIONS

This Fall, Jaime Dahlstedt joined the Arizona State University Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law as an Associate Clinical Professor of Law and the inaugural Director of the Ruth V. McGregor Family Protection Clinic. In its first semester of operation, Jaime’s clinic has already been integrated into a strong ASU and Phoenix domestic violence prevention community. In addition to providing individual holistic representation and advice to survivors of intimate partner violence, her clinic created and runs a community education program at schools that serve a low-income population. As part of this outreach program, students provide Know Your Legal Rights Trainings on domestic violence to parents in English and Spanish. Students also provide safety planning advice and facilitate discussion as to how those in the audience can help end domestic violence on an individual and community level.

John H. Blume was recently named Cornell Law School’s first Director of Clinical, Advocacy and Skills Programs. In that capacity, Professor Blume will work with the clinical and skills faculty to promote coherence, direction and growth for the Law School’s clinical and skills curriculum. Professor Blume has been at Cornell since 1997 where he teaches Criminal Procedure, Evidence and directs the Cornell Death Penalty Project, including the capital punishment clinics.

Susan Hazeldean has joined the Cornell Law Faculty as an Assistant Clinical Professor this fall and will create a Civil Rights Clinic focusing on LGBT issues. Professor Hazeldean, who most recently was a Clinical Teaching Fellow at Yale Law School and who previously worked for the Urban Justice Center, has more than a decade’s experience as an advocate for workers, immigrants, veterans and homeless LGBT youth. Professor Hazeldean is an outstanding teacher and mentor who will be a great asset as we move forward in revitalizing the clinical programs at the Law School.

Peter Toll Hoffman has joined the faculty of the Elon University School of Law in Greensboro, North Carolina. He holds the position of Professor and Director of Skills Programs. His new position will include supervising the school’s clinical programs. He is formerly a professor at the University of Houston Law Center where he held the Newell H. Blakely Chair in Evidence.

The Northern Illinois University College of Law faculty voted to change the status of clinicians from short-term contract "supportive professional staff" to long-term contract "clinical faculty," which was approved by the Provost. As a result, Paul J. Cain has been appointed as Clinical Associate Professor of Law and Wendy Hinton Vaughn has been appointed as Clinical Assistant Professor of Law. Professor Cain teaches the Elder Law Clinic and Professor Vaughn teaches the Domestic Abuse Clinic. Anita Ortiz Maddali has been appointed as Professor and Director of Clinics for the College of Law. Professor Maddali most recently worked at DePaul University College of Law, where she developed and managed a Poverty Law Clinic. She has also been a clinical professor at Northwestern University School of Law, and a Staff Attorney for MALDEF.

Patrick Metze, Director of the Criminal Defense Clinic, Capital Punishment Clinic and Public Defender Clinic at Texas Tech University School of Law, was recently recommended by the faculty for promotion to full Professor with tenure. Under the law school’s unitary tenure-track, all full-time faculty teaching in the clinic at Texas Tech will now be full professors with tenure.

Miriam Marton has joined the Asylum and Human Rights Clinic at the University of Connecticut School of Law as the William R. Davis Clinical Teaching Fellow. Ms. Marton was an attorney at the New York office of Skadden Arps, where she handled numerous pro bono asylum cases. Marton has conducted trainings for Columbia, NYU and Penn law students on interviewing refugees, and presented papers at a cross-disciplinary international conference on the effects of humiliation on human dignity. Prior to her law career, she was a clinical social worker with a practice that focused on sexual assault and domestic violence survivors.

The University of the District of Columbia David A. Clarke School of Law offers a two-year LL.M. program with a Concentration in Clinical Education, Social Justice, and Systems Change. The program, which prepares experienced attorneys to become clinical educators and leaders in the public interest bar, includes coursework in clinical pedagogy and public interest law, as well as development by each fellow of a project designed to effect system change, accompanied by a scholarly work of publishable quality. LL.M. candidates work under the supervision of the Law School’s experienced faculty to supervise and teach J.D. students enrolled in the clinic.

This year, the L.L.M. program welcomes three new Clinic Fellows. Daniel M. Clark works with the Housing and Consumer Law Clinic. Clark is the former Managing Attorney at the D.C. Bar Pro Bono Program where he supervised Landlord Tenant, Affordable Housing and Bankruptcy programs. Fellow Ramesh Kasarabada works with the Juvenile and Special Education Law Clinic and the Took Crowell Institute for At-Risk Youth. He was a staff attorney and then a supervising attorney at the Legal Aid Bureau in Baltimore, representing children in abuse and neglect cases. James (Jimmy) A. comes to UDC-DCSL with experience as a Revenue Agent for the Internal Revenue Service; Judicial Intern in both the U.S. Tax Court and the U.S. Court of Federal Claims, and a Federal Tax Associate with Ernst and Young, LLP. He works with the Low-Income Taxpayer Clinic.

Susham Modi is currently a Supervising Attorney at the University of Houston Law Center’s Immigration Clinic. In this capacity, he is responsible for supervising upper-level students working on various pro bono immi-igration cases which include cases involving immigrants who are victims of crimes, immigration-related federal court litigation, appeals before the Board of Immigration Appeals, asylum cases, and removal defense cases before immigration courts. Prior to joining the University of Houston, he worked as an Advocate/Attorney at Harvard Law School’s Immigration and Refugee Clinical Program.

Robert A. Latham has joined the University of Miami School of Law’s Children & Youth Law Clinic as a Practitioner-in-Residence and Lecturer. In the Clinic, he teaches students who handle cases involving abused, abandoned and neglected children in a variety of forums, including dependency and family courts, administrative hearings, and federal and appellate courts. Latham received his J.D. cum laude from the University of Michigan (2007), where he participated as a student and a Dean's Fellow in the Michigan Child Advocacy Law Clinic. Prior to joining the Clinic, Mr. Latham was a Senior Program Attorney at the Guardian ad Litem Program.

Cortney Lollar joins the Washington University School of Law’s Criminal Defense Clinic as a Clinical Fellow. Before joining the faculty, Lollar was an attorney with the Federal Defender Program in Atlanta and with the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia. A graduate of New York University School of Law, in law school she received the Arthur T. Vanderbilt Medal for public service and was editor-in-chief for the Review of Law & Social Change.

Josh Gupta-Kagan joins the Civil Justice Clinic as a Lecturer In Law and Clinic Attorney at Washington University School of Law. Gupta-Kagan joins the faculty from the Children’s Law Center in Washington, D.C., where he was a senior attorney. He has taught Family Law II and Child Abuse and Neglect as an adjunct at the Georgetown University Law Center. In law school at New York University, Josh was a senior articles editor on the New York University Law Review and a Root-Robert Kuehn, Professor of Law at Washington University, is the new Associate Dean for Clinical Education. In addition to assuming oversight of the School’s fifteen clinical programs, he will continue to co-direct the Interdisciplinary Environmental Clinic.

The faculty and administration of Barry University has added an additional tenure track line to clinics, bringing the school’s total to four. Kate Aschenbrenner has run the Immigration Clinic for the past two years as a visitor. Partially due to Kate’s great work and partially due to the School’s commitment to clinical legal education, the School has converted Kate’s position to a tenure track position effective this semester.

Kate came to us two years ago to create and run our immigration clinic after completing a fellowship at Georgetown in the Center for Applied Legal Studies. Prior to her Georgetown fellowship, Kate had taught in the Immigration Clinic at St. Thomas University School of Law in Miami and served as a legal services lawyer representing immigrants for three years in St. Petersburg, Florida. Before this service, Kate served as a law clerk for Jack B. Weinstein, federal district court judge in New York City.

In addition to creating our Immigration clinic, Kate co-organized and ran the Haitian TPS Project of Central Florida with local non-profits, giving students the opportunity to assist eligible Haitians with their applications for temporary protected status after the earthquake.

Chris Lasch (University of Denver)

- Chris Lasch, and his wife Elizabeth Stovall, succeeded in overturning a death sentence in a death penalty case from Kentucky. The judge vacated Mills’ death sentence based on the ineffectiveness of Mills’ trial counsel, who called a single witness at mitigation—Mills’ sister. Based on the evidence presented in post-conviction proceedings, at which Lasch and Stovall called 16 mitigation witnesses, the court found trial counsel’s mitigation investigation “perfunctory at best” and held there was “an abundance of mitigating evidence available to trial counsel” that was not presented (August 22, 2011).

- Chris Lasch (and Robin Walker Sterling) served as faculty members for the SPDTC’s annual training conference. Faculty members for the SPDTC are experienced professors and practitioners who are or have been public defenders and participate by invitation only. The SPDTC annual training conference aims to teach students the “heartset, mindset, and soulset” of a public defender, concentrating on teaching skills in a setting that reinforces professional values and ethics. Kevin Lynch (University of Denver)

Nancy Maurer (Albany Law School)

Professor Maurer led an Albany Law School student team to win the American Bar Association Negotiations Regional Competition over 23 other teams from 10 schools. Practicing attorneys, including Albany Law alumni, served as judges. Grades were based upon legal analysis, poise, creativity, communication and negotiation skills. The competition is intended to promote greater interest among law students in legal negotiations and provides a means for them to practice and improve their negotiating skills.

Center for Excellence in Law Teaching Conference, March 30, 2012

Albany Law School’s Center for Excellence in Law Teaching (CELT) directed by Clinical Professor Mary Lynch will host a national conference on “Setting and Assessing Learning Objectives from Day One” for law school faculty and administrators on March 30, 2012. The conference, to be held at Albany Law School, will focus on setting and assessing foundational objectives for law students, as well as what some law schools have already done to better structure curriculum and prepare students to meet proposed new American Bar Association standards. http://www.celtconference2012.org/ The conference will continue the work of Best Practices and Carnegie in building bridges between clinical, lawyering, doctrinal and perspective teachers and methodologies. Best of all, you get to hang out with Albany Law Clinical Faculty. Conference is only $40 including a yummy dinner and if you book early you can get special hotel rates at the Hilton Garden Inn across the street from the law school. Double-queen rooms start at $99.00. The rate will expire after March 8th, 2012 or after all allotted rooms are booked.

Northeast Regional Scholarship and Teaching Development Workshop, Feb. 3-4, 2012

Albany Law School will hold a teaching and scholarship workshop for untenured faculty entitled Sharing Scholarship, Building Teachers, the 2012 Northeast Regional Scholarship and Teaching Development Workshop on Feb. 3-4, 2012. The workshop is intended for law faculty who do not have tenure and who seek an opportunity to develop their scholarship and discuss their teaching with other, similarly situated law faculty. The program will provide a safe and comfortable forum for untenured faculty to present works in progress, solicit feedback from peers ahead of the February-March Law Review submission season, and network with other untenured faculty in the region about teaching practices and related issues. There is no fee to attend the program (whether you are presenting a paper or not). Albany Law School will provide all meals and drinks during the workshop at no charge to attendees. Registration ended November 15, 2011, however late registration may be accommodated for those interested. Please contact Professor Keith Hirokawa for further details khiro@albanylaw.edu. The deadline for submitting an abstract, draft, or completed paper for review is Jan. 5, 2012

Urban Child Symposium, April 12, 2012

The Center for Families Children and the Courts will convene its fourth Urban Child Symposium on April 12, 2012, at the University of Baltimore School of Law. “The Beginning or the End: The Urban Child’s Experience in the Juvenile Justice System” will focus on issues regarding urban youths’ experience in the juvenile justice system during an extremely vulnerable time in their lives, when their still-developing brains and the personality characteristics common to adolescents expose them to unique risks. The symposium will address the importance of balancing public safety with the unique needs of urban children in the juvenile justice system and will also explore how society should address those needs in its approach to juvenile criminal behavior. Professor Bernardine Dohrn, Clinical Associate Professor of Law and founder/director, Children and Family Justice Center, Northwestern University School of Law will be a keynote speaker.

Scholarship Committee

The Scholarship Committee of the AALS Section on Clinical Legal Education offers every clinician an opportunity for supportive, non-evaluative feedback on a scholarly work-in-progress from a clinical colleague with shared substantive expertise. We have already matched many writers and reviewers. If you have a work-in-progress and would like to be paired with a clinical colleague at another school, send a request to this address: clinicalpeernetwork@gmail.com. We have an extensive database of clinicians willing to provide feedback in your subject-matter area. If you are willing to offer constructive feedback, join our amazing database of subject-matter experts at this link: http://spreadsheets.google.com/viewform?key=pZsCVzJPWhvPxnLkLSzQ&email=true or email Michele Gilman at mgilman@ubalt.edu. This is not a commitment to serve as a peer reviewer. You will simply be in our database, and when an author in your area of expertise asks for peer review, we will contact you to see if you are interested. We are actively seeking more reviewers for our database. If you have questions, send an email to clinicalpeernetwork@gmail.com. Happy writing!
Southwest Junior Clinicians Conference, March 16, 2012

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University is proud to host the initial Southwest Junior Clinicians Conference on Friday March 16, 2012. This conference is intended for junior clinicians (roughly defined as less than 10 years teaching experience) to have a safe place to discuss a broad array of issues that may impact their careers as professors who teach in a clinical setting. The conference will include plenary presentations, concurrent breakout sessions, and plenty of networking opportunities. Attendees who would like to workshop any scholarship-in-progress are invited to participate in the ASU Legal Scholars Conference scheduled for Saturday March 17th. During the Legal Scholars Conference, attendees meet in small groups organized by subject matter and provide feedback on every paper in their small group. Scholarship monies are available for a limited number of clinical VAPS and fellows to attend the Jr. Clinicians Conference. Anyone interested in a scholarship should contact Zelda Graham at roselda.graham@asu.edu.
